

December 13th Monthly Meeting

Redwood Writers Presents: Sharon Hamilton

BEING AN INDIE AUTHOR

There Will Be Tears

Being a bestselling Indie author requires more than just writing a good book. Over 50% of what you need to know to be successful has to do with marketing and mindset and how to engage with your readers. You need clear goals and a mindset that is unstoppable or your dream will be DOA. If you really want to make this work, I'll share techniques I've learned both by making some huge mistakes, and getting lucky with others. We'll talk social media, street teams, also-buys, Amazon bods, audio books, book signings, conventions, foreign translations, designing covers, editing, formatting, virtual assistants and PAs, and the pros and cons of having an agent or pursuing a hybrid author career. This isn't a one size fits all talk.

About Sharon Hamilton

Sharon's NYT and USA Today bestselling novels are almost-erotic Navy SEAL stories of the SEAL Brotherhood. Her characters follow a spicy road to redemption through passion and true love. All of her SEAL Brotherhood Series are available in audio book. She has maintained an Amazon top 100 author status in Romantic Suspense since the end of 2012. Honeymoon Bite, Book 1 of the Golden Vampires of Tuscany Series, has earned the Amazon designation of #1 Gothic Romance. It and Book 2 in the series, Mortal Bite are both available on audio as well. Her Guardian Angels series are also in print and audio formats. A lifelong organic gardener, Sharon lives with her husband in the Wine Country of Northern California, where most of her stories take place. When she's not writing, she's getting verra verra dirty the mud, or wandering Farmer's Markets looking for new Heirloom varieties of vegetables and flowers.
